Early learning and child care has come to the forefront as we begin to re-open society. Leaders from business, labour and academia recognize that quality ECE is needed more than ever.

A week ago the Globe and Mail published my commentary – A Strong Child Care System is Essential to Our Recovery From the Pandemic. I have received positive responses from business, governments and communities across Canada. There is a growing consensus for building a strong ECE system for all children in Canada.

Margaret and Wallace McCain Family Foundation Inc. continues to work with governments, businesses and communities across Canada to make the case for high quality ECE programs that reduce inequities for children and support parents' return to work.
